

Father's Day Ideas

*Mom's – you may notice that the writing ideas are the same format as what you received at Mother's Day. I've done this on purpose as I felt it would be a cute keepsake to see the similarities and differences of what your child thinks you like as opposed to your husband. ☺ They have some pretty cute ideas at this age – enjoy! The card and gift ideas are different, of course! Hope it's a great Father's Day for all the special dads and grandads!

Gift:

I love this one! It says to use scrapbooking paper to make the tie. This can be found at the DollarStore but even easier you can decorate/color the tie yourself! Check it out at this link:

Writing

This week's writing is all about Dad! Choose one of the following writing activities to give to Dad on his special day!

- Write a story called "Dad's Perfect Day" – It can start with the words: On Dad's special day, he would...then keep writing what would happen on his perfect day. Remember each time you give an idea tell a few details about it. For instance: He would sleep in late. Nobody would wake him up. We would all be very quiet until he got up all on his own!
- Write an acrostic poem. We have done a few of these before. Spell a word down the page (use colorful letters). Now use each of those letters to describe your father. I'll show you an example using the word CAT. Remember you are going to do the same using the word FATHER.

Cuddly
Aacts really silly
T Teases the dog
S Softly purring

- Write about why you love Dad. Use the paper below. Remember to add some details. Example: If you say you love how he helps you then tell 2-3 things he does to help.

Dad
I Love You Because...
